THE PRINCETON CONFERENCE ON DRONE WARFARE

A Conference Training People of Faith to Advocate against Drone Warfare
Princeton Theological Seminary | September 27-29, 2019

The Interfaith Network on Drone Warfare (INDW), a coalition of national denominations and faith groups, is sponsoring a national training conference to equip people of faith interested in working on this issue within the faith community on ways to advocate against drone warfare. It will be held at Princeton Theological Seminary in Princeton, NJ.

The conference will begin with dinner on Friday, September 27 and will end with lunch on Sunday, September 29. The cost of the conference, including room and board, is $50, and financial help is also available to cover some travel costs. It would be helpful if there were at least two people from your congressional district. If you are able to attend, please try to recruit someone from your congressional district to attend the conference as well.

President Obama, during his second term, took steps to reduce civilian casualties associated with drone strikes. Since President Trump took office, the rate of US drone strikes has escalated dramatically, with almost no push-back from Congress to date.

This Conference will train and equip people of faith to educate congregations about drone warfare and advocate with Congress to limit or end drone warfare. The conference will provide background information on lethal drones and will train participants to approach and engage congregations, enable people in congregations to participate in public policy advocacy, work with national denominational offices, and work with the media.

The Peace Action Education Fund, the parent organization of the Interfaith Network on Drone Warfare, will convene monthly conference calls starting in October 2019 and continuing until February 2021 (a month after the inauguration) for those engaged in educating the religious community and enabling the religious community to advocate for changes in U.S. policy on this issue with their congresspeople.

To register for the conference, either fill out and mail the form on the back of this page, OR go to www.interfaithdronenetwork.org. Indicate on the registration form if you need funds for travel.
